For this scenario as a stand alone, the wins. If neither side holds all three, the result is a draw.

7.11 19 Nov 1942: Uranus & Mars: EatG Map Area

But I wanted to come to the Volga, to a definite place, to a definite city. It accidentally bears the name of Stalin himself, but do not think that I went after it on that account.

Indeed, it could have an altogether different name. But only because it is an important point, that is, there 30 million tons of traffic can be cut off, including about 9 million of oil shipments. There all the wheat pours in from those enormous territories of the Ukraine, of the Kuban territory, then to be transported to the North. There the manganese ore was forwarded. A gigantic terminal was there; I wanted to take it. And do you know we're modest: that is, we have it; there are only a couple of very small places left there.

Now the others say: Why aren't you fighting there? Because I don't want to make a second Verdun but would rather do it with very small shock units. Time plays no part here. No ships come up the Volga any more- that is the decisive thing.

Hitlers speech on the 19th Anniversary of the "Beer Hall Putsch" (November 8, 1942)

This map area covers the actual Uranus offensive, Operation Little Sarrturn and the German spring counter attacks. It replaces the 1993 Enemy at the Gates Campaign Game.

Ju.52Victory:

To win, the Russians must take and hold both Kharkov and Rostov by the end of the game and the Germans must fail their victory conditions.

If the Germans succeed in their conditions and the Russians fail to take and hold both cities, then the Germans win.

The German Victory condition is to hold all hexes of Stalingrad, Gumrak (D51.35), and Pitomik (D48.34) until 15 Feb 43, unless a successful relief occurs.

A relief is successful if the Germans re-establish trace supply to the Fortress on or after 12 Dec 42 (even if they later lose the city and the air bases, all units are free to leave the pocket).

Combined Case Blue and EatG Game Victory:

Ignore the conditions in the 19 Nov 1942 Case Blue Area conditions. The German player must choose either "Hitler Directive" or "No Hitler" before play begins.

If he chooses "Hitler Directive", use the above victory conditions for the linked game.

If he chooses "No Hitler", then the German player wins if he takes Grozny while the Russian player fails to take the two cities required of him.

As a stand-alone game, the Germans win if they extract all the mobile Panzer and Motorized formations (Battalion or larger) off the north map edge via Rostov, but at the same time must abide by the following special rules:

- 1) Mobile Formations on Maps J and K cannot move out of contact with Russian units until 1 Jan 43.
- 2) Axis forces must hold and keep in trace supply Maikop (K31.30) until at least 12 Jan 43.
- 3) Likewise, Axis forces must hold and keep in trace supply Armavir (J43.35) until at least 26 Jan 43.
- 4) No Mobile formation can enter Map G until 26 Jan 43.

If the Germans do not fulfill all of these conditions (they can temporarily fail the trace supply requirements of #2 and #3 provided the trace is re-established before the required time period ends), the Russians win.

If the Russians fail to take and hold both cities with supplied units, then the Germans win.

A player must take and hold all the Major and Minor city hexes physically attached to the city in question.

Victory:

As a stand-alone game, the Germans win if they retain control of both sides of the Straits of Kerch until the end of the game. This is a reasonably easy task, so the game is balanced in favor of the Germans.
